

Hollis & Wright

In early 2002, L. Andrew Hollis, Jr., and Joshua J. Wright founded a law firm with a mission -- "to be better tomorrow than we are today." Hollis & Wright, P.C., works for plaintiffs seeking justice and provides exemplary client representation through personal interaction, thorough preparation and attention to detail. Located downtown in the Financial Center, Hollis & Wright aggressively represents the interests of consumers, victims and commercial entities throughout the United States, providing high quality legal services on a contingency fee basis. Hollis & Wright is a full-service plaintiffs' firm, assisting clients with single-event cases as well as class and mass tort actions.

The Hollis & Wright team brings together a wealth of trial and appellate experience for its client base. In addition to partners Hollis and Wright, the firm includes associates Paul Garrison, Steve Couch, Chris Glover and Kitty Rogers. Although the firm itself is just four years old, the attorneys have over sixty years of combined practice experience and a reputation state-wide and beyond for excellence in both trial and appellate advocacy. Hollis & Wright is committed to achieving results for its clients, and to that end has pursued resolution of claims both inside the courtroom and through such means of alternative dispute resolution as mediation and arbitration with great success. The firm also employs a highly trained and experienced support staff to assist the attorneys and clients in every aspect of litigation.

Hollis & Wright's attorneys are heavily involved in professional organizations and their community. Mr. Hollis is a past President of the Alabama Trial Lawyers' Association (ATLA), has been named in The Best Lawyers in America[®], and is a board-certified civil trial advocate. Additionally, Mr. Hollis has held numerous leadership roles in the American Trial Lawyers' Association and has received the highest possible rating, "AV," from Martindale-Hubbell. Mr. Wright is a member of the National Trial Lawyers Association, the Birmingham Bar Association and ATLA. He is a former member of the Board of Governors for ATLA, and is currently a Sustaining Member, on the Executive Committee, and a contributor to TRIAL. The firm's associates are involved in the various bars of which they are members (Alabama, Florida, Georgia, and Mississippi), hold leadership positions in the state and national trial lawyers' associations, and are active in their respective churches and civic organizations.
